

Fall is Here

Fall is here, Fall is here, Birds and flowers dis-appear.

2. Spring is here, Spring is here,
Birds and Flowers Reappear

Game

Friends each decide if they are a bird or flower, and “act” accordingly. (Silent pantomiming, actions should not get in the way of the music or clear singing!) For example, a bird might flap its wings and a flower may hold their hands by their face like petals. Birds may “fly” around the room walking to the steady beat, while flowers might choose to form a garden or meadow and “sway in the wind” to the steady beat. Be imaginative and playful! On the word “disappear”, all friends find a hiding place around the room. Sing the second verse in your hiding spot until the word “reappear”, when all friends come out to celebrate spring again as birds and flowers.
